

Kia Ora!

Our wine offering has both breadth and depth, with New Zealand wines, especially our locally produced Central Otago offering, taking center stage. With healthy offerings internationally, most notably from France and Australia, we are sure to have a wine to suit anybody’s palate. Our wines are acquired from both vineyard libraries and private cellars and each bottle tells the distinctive story of its origins – the terroir, the winemaker and the vintage. At The Rees Hotel we have developed a private cellar of one of the most comprehensive collections of fine Bordeaux wines in New Zealand, complimented by some of the great names in Burgundy. Our cellar also celebrates the growing international stature of the best winemakers of our homeland. It is our firm belief that there is an unserved appetite amongst discerning people for the opportunity to savour the best wines in the world alongside the best from New Zealand – and to know more about the distinctive provenance of the wines they favour.

We are more than happy to help you if you have any questions or would like advice choosing the best wine for you.

APPENDIX NOTES

Champagne

The Champagne region, located about 150km east of Paris, is synonymous with sparkling wine – to the extent where other sparkling wines from around the world are often incorrectly referred to as Champagne. Such fame and reputation comes over time, with the oldest houses still in operation dating back to the late 1500s. Champagne, like most great discoveries, was first produced in a rather dramatic accident. Winemakers, who were attempting to make still wines like in Burgundy, found that their bottles would occasionally explode. The bravest (or drunkest!) of them decided to then drink the seemingly explosive wine and found that it was both delicious and fizzy. The rest, as they say, is history.

Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier make up the vast majority of grapes grown and Champagne is typically made using a blend of all three, with Pinot Meunier usually only making up a small percentage of the blend. There are however unblended Champagnes which are known as Blanc de Blancs and Blanc de Noirs.

Blanc de Blancs translates literally as ‘White of Whites’, and is the term used for Champagne (a white wine) only made using white grapes, referring to Chardonnay.

Blanc de Noirs, ‘White of Blacks’, refers to Champagne made using exclusively dark grapes, most commonly referring to Pinot Noir. Producing a clear wine using dark grapes may seem a little counter-intuitive but it is only the skin contact which gives a wine its colour. The juice from the grape itself is clear so a clear wine can be produced by simply not allowing any extended skin contact after pressing the grapes.

Burgundy

Burgundy is the Old-World home of Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Unlike in Bordeaux, whose wines are named after the Château producing them, Burgundy wines are named for their terroir, or the area of cultivated land they are produced from. There is a classification system which ranks the elite of Burgundy wines, known as Grands Crus, through to regional appellations. In Burgundy, Premier Cru sits below Grand Cru. This is a subtle, but important difference to Bordeaux classifications where Premier Cru denotes the best of the Grand Cru wines. The crown jewel of Burgundy is undoubtedly Romanée-Conti, which produces on average fewer than 6000 bottles per year, making it one of the hardest wines in the world to get your hands on. Chablis, although an appellation of Burgundy, geographically sits halfway between the rest of Burgundy and the region of Champagne to the north.

5 year average 2007-2011

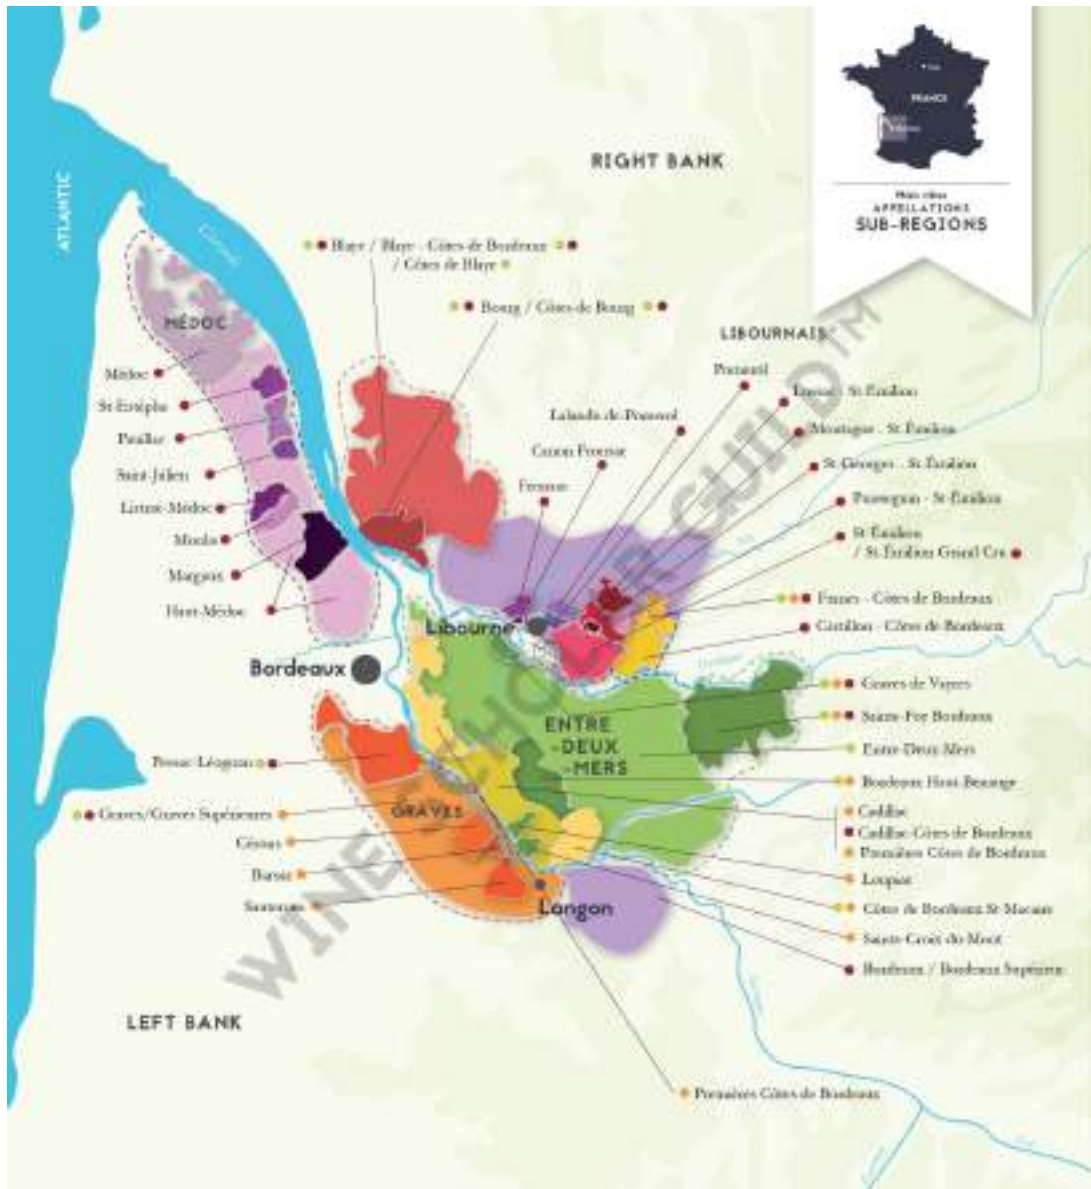

Bordeaux

There are several classifications of Bordeaux wine, depending on which side of the Gironde the wine originates from.

Left-Bank wines are Cabernet Sauvignon dominant and are subject to the Bordeaux Wine Official Classification of 1855. This recognises the highest quality châteaux as Grand Cru Classés, or Great Classified Growths. Within this, there are five further classes ranging from Premier Grand Cru, the best of the best, through to 5ème Grand Cru. There have been only five houses awarded Premier Grand Cru status. All of these feature on this list.

Right-Bank wines are Merlot dominant. Despite being home to several outstanding producers such as Petrus and Château L'Église Clinet in Pomerol, only the Saint-Émilion region has adopted a comparable classification system. This is known as The Saint-Émilion Classification. Within this classification there are two tiers of Premier Grand Cru, A and B. All other recognised châteaux are classified as Grand Cru.

Côtes du Rhône

The Côtes du Rhône, located in the South-East of France, tracks the Rhône Valley north from the Mediterranean Sea. In the Southern Rhône, the very warm climate produces spicy, rich red blends. 19 different varietals are permitted in the Southern Rhône but Grenache, Syrah, and Mourvèdre are produced in the greatest volume. The blends are typically named GSM blends after these three grapes.

As we move into the Northern Rhône, the climate gets far cooler and harsher, and white wine production dominates. In the north the permitted white varietals are Viognier, Marsanne and Roussanne. The only red grape permitted is Syrah.

There are different classifications within the Côtes du Rhône which denotes the quality and prestige of the wine:

The entry level wines are known simply as Côtes du Rhône wines.

The next tier up is known as Côtes du Rhône Villages. Within this subset, the 21 highest quality villages have been permitted to include their name within the appellation as well.

Only 17 producers are a part of the highest class of Rhône wines, known as Cru. Of these, nine are in the South and eight are in the North.

Australia

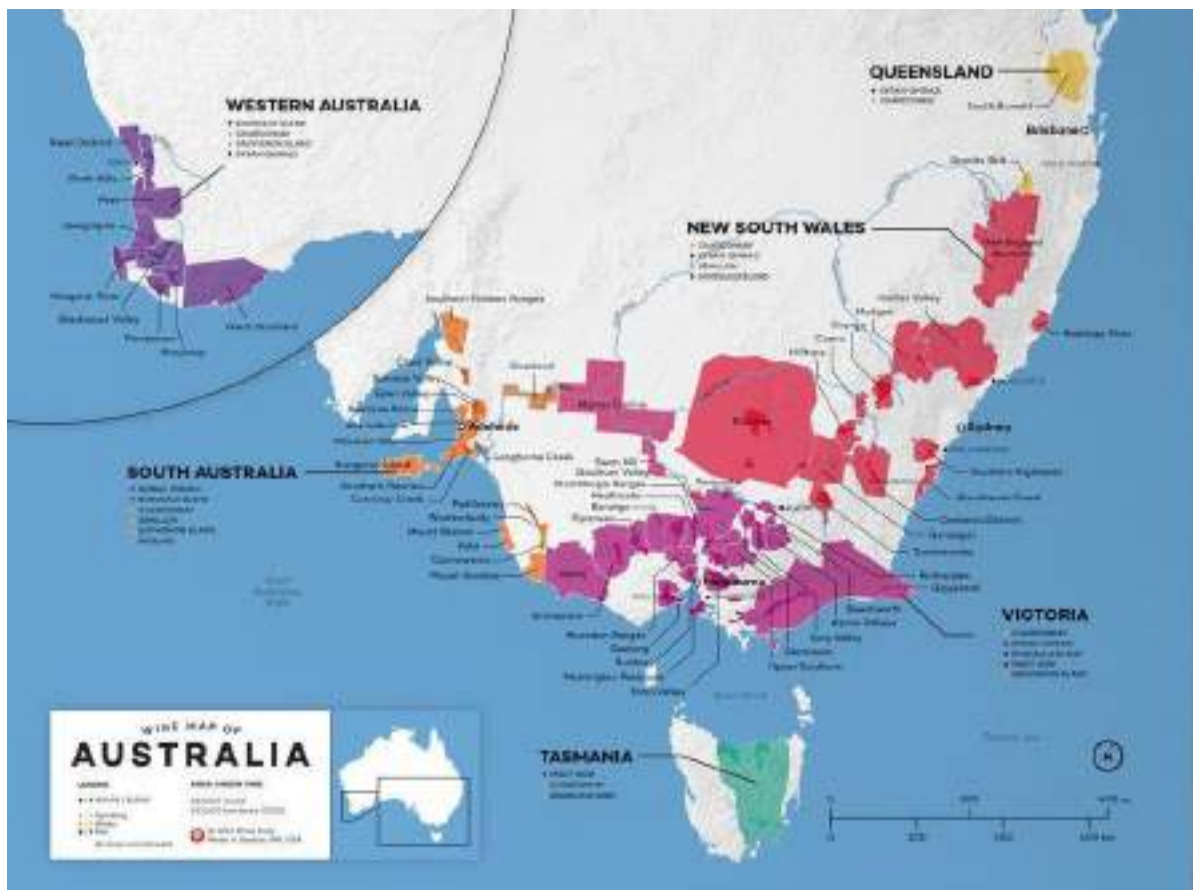

Australia is home to several different wine growing regions with quite a drastic range of climates. The majority of the regions are focussed around the southeast of the country, spread throughout South Australia, Victoria, and New South Wales. The southwest tip of Western Australia is the notable exception and must not be overlooked, home to some very prestigious regions such as Margaret River.

The wide range of conditions around the country results in a vast array of different styles of wine being produced. Chardonnay and Shiraz lead the way however in terms of production.

Cooler climates such as the Adelaide Hills and the Mornington Peninsula produce excellent lighter wines such as Sauvignon Blanc, delicate Chardonnay, and Pinot Noir.

Coastal areas such as Margaret River, despite having warm Mediterranean climates, make use of the cooling ocean breezes to bring Chardonnay and Sauvignon Semillon blends into play. These tend to be richer and more tropical than their counterparts grown in cooler climates. This leads to the Chardonnay in particular having more oak used in its production.

Warmer climates away from the coast such as Barossa Valley and Eden Valley are exceptionally dry and warm in Summer and produce big Shiraz and Cabernet Blends. Despite being very warm during the day, these areas can also get very cold at night. Clare Valley, for example, makes use of the cool nights and higher altitude sites to retain acidity and produce world class Riesling.

Italy

Italy is the home of several world-renowned wines such as Chianti, Barolo, Prosecco, Valpolicella, Soave and Orvieto. It has a rich and diverse wine heritage dating back more than four thousand years. It is divided into 20 administrative wine regions. Due to their geographical locations they are clustered into three major domains; Northern, Central, and Southern Italy. The most significant wine regions when both quality and quantity are taken in consideration are Tuscany, Piedmont and Veneto.

NORTHERN ITALY

Northern Italy is composed of six growing regions: Piedmont, Valle D'Aosta, Lombardy, Trentino, Friuli and Veneto. Piedmont stands out as one of the two most sophisticated wine region in country, famous for its austere, tannic and floral red wines made from Nebbiolo. Sitting near northern border of the truly effective geographic wine-growing area with its continental climate, heavy fogs, and the rain-shadow effect from the neighbouring Alps. Northern Italian wines generally require a longer growing season to develop into some of the highest rated wines in the world.

Top Varietals

Red: Barbera, Nebbiolo, Dolcetto

White: Moscato, Pinot Grigio, Valpolicella, Chardonnay

CENTRAL ITALY

Central Italy is home to Tuscany, Umbria and Lazio facing the Tyrrhenian Sea while Romagna, Le Marche and Abruzzo on the east side of Apennine Mountains. The moderate, Mediterranean climate along with rolling hills, abundant sun, coastal winds from the Adriatic Sea and a mixture of limestone, sand, clay, and volcanic soils make this an environment conducive to vine growing and wine production. Sangiovese is widely produced in this region and prized for its acid structure, firm tannins, savoury characters and rich aromas of dark cherries.

Top Varietals

Red: Sangiovese, Syrah, Cabernet Sauvignon

White: Trebbiano Toscano, Vernacca

SOUTHERN ITALY

Appellations like Molise, Puglia and Sicily, with miles and miles of coastline with fertile and flat prairie lands, produce vast amounts of wines that range wildly in quality. Offering a warm Mediterranean climate due to its geographical location being closer to equator with abundance of coastal winds from the surrounding ocean and subtle mountain influences. Southern Italy is generally dry and sunny, producing sweeter and more full-bodied red and white wines that are increasingly available, inexpensive, and improving in quality over a period of time.

Top Varietals

Red: Nero d'Avola (Calabrese), Carignano, Aglianico, Primitivo

White: Grillo, Falanghina, Vernaccia

Italy- continued

There are four wine classifications in Italy to distinguish the quality of the wine.

- Vino da Tavola (VdT) is the lowest classification and describes wines without a geographical indication - “table wine”.
- Indicazione Geographica Tipica (IGT) is next and is the broadest classification. These are often high quality and non-traditional wines.
- Denominazione di Origine Controllata (DOC) is the 2nd highest tier, which follows strict rules and produces high quality traditional wines. Each DOC has its own rules about permitted grape varieties, maximum harvest yields, and aging requirements.
- Denominazione di Origine Controllata e Garantita (DOCG) contains Italy’s finest wine and is the most exclusive of all the classifications, with 74 DOCG wines in circulation. DOCG wines have an additional “garantita,” or guarantee, by the Italian government to be wines of especially high quality. Each DOCG-labelled wine must pass a wine quality tasting panel, while DOC wines must merely be grown and made in accordance with the rules of the appellation.

Spain

Wine regions are spread throughout Spain and are predominantly very warm and dry. The exception is Galicia to the Northwest, where the Atlantic Ocean provides a significant cooling effect. This allows the crisp, fruity native white grape, Albariño, to thrive.

Tempranillo, Garnacha (Grenache) and Airén (predominantly used in brandy production) dominate elsewhere in Spain with the best examples coming from La Rioja and Castilla y León which track the Ebro and Duero River respectively through the northern central highlands. Vega Sicilia, Spain's most renowned producer is found in the latter, in a region known as the Ribera del Duero, close to the Portuguese border.

Andalucía is located on the south coast and has one of the hottest climates of any wine growing region in the world. Most famous for the region of Jerez, this is the heart of Spain's sherry production.

There are several different quality classifications a wine can possess in Spain. Above the entry level table wines, these are broadly split into three levels. The IG (Identificación Geográfica) speaks to the wines geographical characteristics but is quite relaxed in terms of viticulture and winemaking. The next level up is DO (Denominación de Origen). This has a more regimented set of rules in terms of quality, dictating production levels, permitted varietals, winemaking, and aging regulations. Only Rioja and Prioret occupy the highest classification of DOCa (Denominación de Origen Calificada). To qualify the wines must have been a DO for ten years and must be valued at double the cost of the average DO wine.

The age classifications vary when used in different regions, and when applied to a white varietal or a rose. For the more prestigious regions of Rioja and Ribera del Duero, the red wines have the following appellation rules: "Crianza" must be aged for a minimum of one year in oak barrel, then one year in bottle before release, "Reserva" must be aged for 3 years, with one year in barrel, and two in bottle, and "Gran Reserva", aged for five years, two in barrel and three in bottle.

Argentina

Argentina's wine-growing regions can broadly be split into 3 areas.

El Norte, The North encompasses the regions of Salta, Tucumán and Catamarca. Salta contains the highest vineyards in the world at an altitude of around 3000m. This, in combination with a very dry climate provide exceptional conditions for viticulture. The native white grape, Torrontés, is the star here, although excellent Malbec and Cabernet Sauvignon is also produced.

Patagonia in the South, rivals New Zealand for the southernmost vineyards in the world. The cool, mountainous desert, much like in Central Otago, specialises in Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, and Riesling. Of course, being Argentina, Malbec is also grown in abundance.

El Cuyo sits between these two areas and is home to La Rioja, San Juan and Mendoza. This is the heart of Argentinian wine production, with Mendoza and San Juan containing 95% of the country's vineyards. Malbec is the star here, with Mendoza being world famous for its best examples. Excellent full-bodied chardonnay is also produced.
